

Comments on FCC Filing RM-11737
60001011553.txt

I am writing solely as a private citizen who frequently travels on business.

The application by Marriott (et al.) is clearly motivated not by concerns over security but to force attendees at conferences or people staying at their facilities to pay (dearly) for WiFi services that they can otherwise obtain on their own, through use of the free market to purchase their own mobile hot spots.

It strikes me as akin to a hotel insisting that people staying there can only eat at the hotel restaurant, out of concerns for "food safety."

Interference with a public, unowned frequency pool and increasingly pervasive communication technology, for pecuniary purposes, strikes me as precisely the sort of thing that the FCC was intended to prevent. I urge you to reject the petition and make it clear under what, if any, narrowly defined circumstances interference with hot spots is allowed.

Respectfully, David C. Hill
